Equality for all people

We want a world where inequality based on class, gender, and race is absent in every country, and from the relationships among countries.

We want a world where basic needs become basic rights and where poverty and all forms of violence are eliminated.

Each person will have the opportunity to develop her or his full potential and creativity, and women's values of nurturance and solidarity will characterize human relationships.

We want a world where massive resources now used in the production of the means of destruction will be diverted to areas where they will help to relieve oppression.

We want a world where all institutions are open to participatory democratic processes, where women share in determining priorities and decisions.

Only by sharpening the links between equality, development, and peace, can we show that the 'basic rights' of the poor and the transformation of the institutions are inextricably linked.
